Fair Enough.

The last train was very crowded. The only vacant seats to be seen were in the first-class carriage. Although the Irishman had only a workman's ticket, he felt himself entitled to a seat, so entered one of the "firsts" and made himself comfortable. Presently the inspector came along and asked severely:

"How is it you're in a first-class carriage with a workman's ticket—eh?"

"Shure," replied the Irishman, with a grin, "it's because I'm a first-class workman!"—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

ALTSCHULER DIRECTS PATRIOTIC ENSEMBLE

The Russian Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Modest Altschuler, gave a concert at the National Theater yesterday afternoon with Bernard Altschuler, the well-known "cellist," as soloist.

This concert was the third of a series of ten arranged by T. Arthur Smith to bring to Washington the best music. In a program of great variety, ranging from the "Pathétique" Symphony of Tchaikowsky to an arrangement of allied hymns by Glazunov, the audience were pleasingly if not classically entertained.

In the lighter numbers Mr. Altschuler interpreted with particular charm, receiving a large ovation after a little Russian Folk Song. This number was so well appreciated that Mr. Altschuler repeated it to the delighted audience.

Bernard Altschuler was encored after a little Gavotte by Popper, which he played most effectively. Mr. Altschuler has a depth of tone which is most pleasing.

A most magnificent arrangement of the allied national airs by Glazunov was played while the audience stood at attention, bringing to a close this program with "Dixie." The audience left with the feeling of having attended a patriotic ensemble rather than a symphony concert. The program follows:

Symphony "Pathétique" (Tchaikowsky). (1) Adagio, Allegro non troppo, (2) Allegro con grazia, (3) Allegro molto vivace, (4) Finale Adagio lamentoso. (5) "Sister's Song" (Russian Folk Song), (6) "Banjo Pickers" (John Powell), cello solo, (a) "Vocalise" (Rachmaninoff), (b) "Gavotte" (Popper), "Paraphrase" Op. 96 (A. Glazunov). The allied hymns (Russian, Serbian, Montenegrin, French, British, Belgian, Italian, Japanese and American).

Rev. Mr. Covell to Write Sunday Herald Sermon

Rev. David E. Covell, of Christ Episcopal Church, who will write The Herald's Sunday sermon this week, is a real Washingtonian.

In 1908 he graduated from the Eastern High School, and in 1910 obtained the degree of Bachelor of Arts from George Washington University. In 1914 he won his Master of Arts degree at the same institution. A course at the John Theological Seminary, of New York City, was followed by an extensive tour of Europe. On his return to this country, Mr. Covell took up missionary work among the mountaineers of North Carolina for several years. In February, 1916, Mr. Covell was called to the assistant rectory of Christ Church, and was soon elevated to the rectory.

Rev. Mr. Covell's brother, Maj. William Covell, of the Engineer Corps, who is now on the European battle front, is well remembered locally as "Billy" Covell, captain of the winning company of High School Cadets in the annual competitive drill of 1911.

WORKERS WANT TO BUY GOODS AT U. S. STORES

Federal Employees' Union Considers Petition to Congress.

As a practical remedy against the high cost of living, the Federal Employees' Union of Washington, through its board of representatives, last night voted to consider the petitioning of Congress, the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy to permit government employees to buy supplies at the army and navy commissaries.

The special committee which considered the question recommended petitioning immediately, but the matter was referred to the advisory committee for a report and recommendation at the next meeting.

Should the employees succeed in their desire it would mean that they could take advantage of the low prices which the government secures through its immense purchases of foodstuffs and commodities and the head of the family, if a prudent buyer, could place his dependents on army rations at a cost of 40 cents a day per person.

Street car facilities were roundly scored and John S. Ginder offered a resolution that Congress investigate, with a view to suggesting some measure of relief for conditions that have demoralized some Federal departments through tardy expenses. That matter also went to the advisory committee for a report.

President John S. Beach felt that the organization should take some part in civic affairs, and suggested that a member of the board of representatives be named for membership in the trade bodies and the civic organizations. This matter will also be discussed by a special committee which will report later.

an, and I had Dr. Cleghorn, the jail physician, examine her. He advised me to remove her from a cell to a room, and issued a certificate regarding the necessity."

Describes Early Life.

In his opening address, Uterhart described Bianca's early life in Chile, to which country her family had given two presidents, her education in England, her meeting with De Saullles in Chile when she was but 16.

"The superficial in his manhood and address attracted," said Uterhart. "She had never seen a man like him before. He told her mother that she was a 'trump,' that he wanted to marry her. He said he would settle in Chile, would buy an estate there and never return to America. Mrs. Erasmus desired to go to the United States, but he advised strongly against it. They went to Paris, where he and Bianca were married.

"When they returned to Chile, leaving his bride's mother in Paris, Mrs. De Saullles' share of her father's estate was turned over to her. He said to her: 'Why that's hardly anything at all. It's absurd to call you an heiress. Write to your mother for money to buy an estate in Chile.' Bianca so wrote and Senora Erasmus called that she could not afford it, but would give the De Saullles some of her estates in Chile.

"Then, gentlemen," continued Uterhart, "the poor girl, that young girl, who was in a delicate condition, over to Paris to try to get some money from her mother. He left her in Paris and went to London, later returning and taking her to Bethlehem, Pa. where he neglected her. And she was not wanted by his people. They made that very plain to her. His mother kept asking her when she was going to leave."

X-Ray Shows Fracture.

One of the chief contributory causes of her lapse of responsibility, according to Uterhart, was revealed when an X-ray, taken of her head in the jail, showed a depressed fracture of an inch deep and an inch and a half in diameter, the break not having knitted.

Another contributing cause, he said, was a hypothyroid condition, or an atrophy or dying of the thyroid gland. This, the defense's physicians will testify, is a disease which affects the nervous centers and the brain, and which rendered her irresponsible and brought on the mental confusion the night of the shooting.

Uterhart dwelt at length upon the alleged financial relations between De Saullles and his wife. He claimed De Saullles systematically stripped her of her fortune.

"On Easter, 1914, De Saullles came for little Jack, saying he wanted to take him for a walk. He gave Bianca a big bunch of flowers, on which was a card, reading: 'To our one and only sweetheart, from Big and Little Jack.' When they returned from the zoo, little Jack told his mother of 'Miss Joe' being with them. 'Miss Joe' was a famous Broadway dancer.

Adjourns Until Monday.

"Later, when Bianca asked him if he had ever entertained any woman in his bachelor apartment where he wanted her to spend the night, he swore by it he held holy that he had not. It was proved, however, that he had entertained 'Miss Joe' there during the winter.

"Another time, when Bianca was cruising in L. W. Island Sound on August Hecksher's yacht, they passed the yacht of a duke. There on the deck among a choice lot of Broadway beauties, stood her husband. His lost was the Duke of Manchester."

Uterhart explained that Bianca had telephoned Stewart Lieghart, asking him to accompany her to "The Box" to get her son. Lieghart, declined to go as he did not wish to be present during family differences.

"Mr. Lieghart will testify to this," said the lawyer.

Justice Manning adjourned court until Monday morning, owing to the conditions made in his regard the effect of the strain of the trial upon the defendant.

U.S. TO TAKE UP TREASURY BILLS OF $700,000,000

Two Issues Maturing Dec. 15 Will Be Liquidated Dec. 6 and 11.

Two issues of Treasury certificates, maturing December 15 and aggregating $700,000,000, will be called in before that date under the right reserved when issued, according to an official announcement from the Treasury Department last night.

The action is taken in order to avoid having to pay one time the whole amount outstanding (about $1,500,000,000) of Treasury certificates which mature on December 15, 1917, and the order of Secretary McAdoo shows that the aggregate amount of payments on November 15 on liberty loan bonds in cash, by credit and in Treasury certificates was about $2,400,000,000.

Text of Notice.

The notice to certificate holders says: "The series of $300,000,000 Treasury certificates of indebtedness, dated September 17, 1917, and maturing December 15, 1917, is hereby called for redemption on December 11, 1917, at par and accrued interest, pursuant to the provision for such redemption contained in the certificates. On December 11, 1917, interest on all certificates of said series will cease to accrue."

"The series of $400,000,000 Treasury certificates of indebtedness, dated September 26, 1917, and maturing December 15, 1917, is hereby called for redemption on December 11, 1917, at par and accrued interest, pursuant to the provision for such redemption contained in the certificates. On December 11, 1917, interest on all certificates of said series will cease to accrue."

"The series of Treasury certificates of indebtedness dated October 24, 1917, and maturing December 15, 1917, will not be redeemed before maturity, but will be paid on December 15, 1917."

U. S. TARS PRAISED

was sighted at a distance of about 800 yards.

The commander of the destroyer ordered speed ahead. Spuming up the sea, the little steel seadog bore directly down upon the German boat. The submarine slid under the surface of the water to escape being run down.

She re-appeared a few minutes afterward, traveling in the opposite direction. The U-boat came toward the destroyer. She passed close on the starboard side.

Just as she was at the right position, the commander of the destroyer ordered a depth charge released. There was an explosion under the surface, "probably causing serious damage, if not destruction to the submarine," the admiralty reports.

Prising the student organization, preparedness and discipline on board the destroyer, as well as the quick decision of the officer of the watch, the British commander-in-chief proposed to recommend Lieut. Comdr. Blakely and Ensign Fallon for proper recognition.

Convoy of Troopship.

In the second engagement, Lieut. Comdr. Neal's destroyer was one of the convoy escorting troopships. She was cruising on station in formation when the wave of a periscope was sighted about 130 yards off the starboard bow by the quartermaster of the watch on duty. He reported to the officer of the watch. General quarters was sounded immediately. The executive officer of the destroyer was the first officer to reach the bridge. He was closely followed by Lieut. Comdr. Neal.

The executive officer rang for full speed ahead as soon as he reached the bridge. The destroyer swung around and headed straight for the periscope.

PRINCE GEORGE COUNTY LIQUOR LAW IS VALID

Baltimore Court Upholds Constitutionality of Test Case Measure.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 23.—The law passed by the war emergency session of the Maryland legislature, making Prince George County dry, after June 1, was declared constitutional here today by Judge Heusler, in the Baltimore city court, and old John Barleycorn, already staggering from repeated blows suffered another knock-down.

The decision of Judge Heusler was rendered in a case brought to test the constitutionality of the law, which State officials declared, went into effect last June. The wets contended that the law did not become operative until June 1, 1918.

Edward Mahoney, of Bladensburg, Md., was arrested by the authorities charged with violating the statute by having liquor in his possession and unlawfully selling it.

Dry Faction Wins.

The constitutionality of the law questioned in habeas corpus proceedings brought by counsel for Mr. Mahoney. It was attacked on the theory that, under the constitution of the State, it should not become operative until June 1, following the session of the General Assembly at which it was passed.

Counsel brought forward by the dry forces to uphold the constitutionality of the law, which included Wayne B. Wheeler, of the Anti-Saloon League of America, contended the law was not unconstitutional and became effective June 1 this year by reason of the fact that it was a war emergency measure.

Judge Heusler upheld the constitutionality of the law, which included Wayne B. Wheeler, of the Anti-Saloon League of America, contended the law was not unconstitutional and became effective June 1 this year by reason of the fact that it was a war emergency measure.

In order to test the law it was decided that Mr. Mahoney should open his bar and sell liquor. He did so and sold a drink of whisky to the sheriff and was immediately arrested.

With the constitutionality of the law, making Prince George County dry one of the last consolations which have lingered in the hearts of those opposed to "dry" Washington has been wiped out.

No longer will it be possible for them to slip out a short distance beyond the District line and get "a little drink." The famous road houses that have flourished for years along the Bladensburg road and the vicinity will be forced to stop selling spirituous liquors.

Lieut. Comdr. Neal then took command. He maneuvered his craft until he gained a favorable position for dropping a depth charge. He gave the executive officer orders to drop the charge. When it seemed proper to do so, when the destroyer was about twenty-five yards directly ahead of the periscope, and in the direction of the submarine's advance, the depth charge was tossed.

After the explosion, debris was seen to rise to the surface. Large bubbles followed and the water became discolored. It is confidently believed that the submarine was sunk.

Praise From British.

For their services in this engagement, the British commander-in-chief praised Lieut. Commander Neal for the efficient way the attack was launched, saying the result was due to his prompt and decisive action and the vigilant lookout maintained on the destroyer. Lieut. Loftin is praised for the way he handled the situation in a prompt and decisive manner after he arrived on the bridge.

FUEL BOARD WARNS OKLAHOMA OPERATORS

Strike Must Not Be Permitted Under Any Circumstances.

Warning was sent yesterday by the United States Fuel Administration to the Oklahoma bituminous coal operators, who have threatened a closing down of the mines through labor controversy unless the government should grant a mine price increase to carry out new wage agreements, that the mines must not be allowed to close in any circumstances, pending settlement.

The Oklahoma operators had announced that they would be unable to carry out their wage agreements with the miners unless they received increases additional to the general increase of 40 cents a ton followed by the President.

That increase and the wage agreement were to have been effective November 1, but the operators' association refused to execute the wage agreement until an increased selling price should be allowed to cover the rise in wages. They announced also that, even if a price increase were granted, they would not make their wage scale retroactive.

S. W. Eccles in Hospital.

Baltimore, Nov. 23.—Suffering from an internal ailment, Silas Wright Eccles, New York capitalist, connected with both the Morgans and Guggenheims, was entered for examination and observation at Johns-Hopkins Hospital today. Mr. Eccles has oil and mining interests in Mexico.

BYNG IS BANGING ON

mation, with utter disregard for the cost in blood. Some of these reinforcements came from the Lens area. None were evidently drawn from the Flanders front, the Tustons fully realizing the danger arising from Haig's successes there this year.

This is shown in an article by the military expert of the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger, who, after triumphantly asserting that the British Cambrai drive "collapsed entirely," says the offensive there will not prompt the German high command to thin the lines in Flanders where the enemy is certain to renew his efforts, which now have become a necessity in order to rid himself of the U-boat bases which are so dangerous to him.

German military writers today also hastened to assert that Gen. Byng's drive will "not affect the situation in Italy in the slightest degree."

In British military and political quarters, however, the opposite view prevails. The conviction was emphatically expressed tonight that the Cambrai drive will have momentous consequences favorable to the allied plan.

Sir Douglas Haig's day bulletin was brief. It declared the situation south-west of Cambrai "unchanged" and recorded a slight advance to the south-east of Ypres. German raids in the St. Quentin area, south of the Cambrai sector, were beaten off.

Front dispatches point out that the British took in two days' fighting as much ground as the Germans did in the first two weeks of their Verdun drive.

Fighting is developing more and more in the open.

Hundreds of French civilians, men, women and children, today poured out of the towns and villages released from German occupation by Byng's push. They are being well cared for by the British.

RED CROSS HELPED AT BUSINESS HIGH

Hundreds of Comfort Bags Shipped. Play to Be Presented.

Activities for the Red Cross at Business High School have been so successful that hundreds of comfort bags of orange and blue cloth, the school colors, have been shipped to the boys "over there."

Several of the girls' clubs of the school have spent much time knitting wristlets. One blanket has been completed and work has been started on another.

A Thanksgiving play will be given by the students Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The program will consist of a playlet written by a pupil, George O'Connor, accompanied by Matt Horn, will give vocal selections. W. J. Pasett has been elected president of the Business High School bank. Other officers are: Miss V. M. Ruppel, vice president and Miss E. C. Simpson, cashier.

Miss Goldy Stevens has been elected business manager of the Balance Sheet, the school paper. Others on the staff are: Rose O. Hagan, Helen Wilson and John Baxter.

A BEVERAGE

Look for this Fox on each crown top

Cold Weather Notice

Keep in mind the fact that Bevo, being a soft drink, will freeze at 32° Fahrenheit—just like any other non-alcoholic beverage. Be careful about this, as freezing affects the rich fullness of that delightful Bevo flavor which goes so particularly well with a meal or a bite to eat.

If Bevo were merely a summer beverage this warning might not be so timely—but, as all who drink it know—

Bevo is an all-year-round drink

Everybody enjoys it for more than just its thirst-quenching qualities—the pleasure it gives comes from its flavor, purity and wholesome nutritiousness—the enjoyment of these qualities is independent of time or season.

To get full pleasure out of Dutch lunches, Welsh rarebits, oysters, clams, lobsters, sausage, cheese and many other such delicious edibles, Bevo should be included.

You will find Bevo at inns, cafeterias, restaurants, groceries, department and drug stores, soda fountains, dining cars, steamships, canteens, soldiers' homes, navy, and other places where refreshing soft drink beverages are sold.

Your grocer will supply you by the case. Demand the genuine—have the bottle opened in front of you—see that the seal is unbroken covering the crown top and see that the crown top bears the Fox.
